

DIC 10 2018
Inaugurato il nuovo reparto per sub acuti dell'Ospedale di Romano

Il Centro Ben-essere donna invece offre un'assistenza multidisciplinare alle donne in menopausa, con l'aiuto di diversi specialisti: ginecologi, endocrinologi, psicologi, ortopedici e grazie alla tecnologia a radiofrequenza quadripolare dinamica ginecologica, di risolvere quei disturbi legati alle variazioni ormonali, come atrofia vaginale, lieve incontinenza e ripetute infezioni urinarie.

Problemi che riguardano anche giovani donne che, guarite da tumori ormoni dipendenti, si trovano a vivere una menopausa precoce indotta farmacologicamente o chirurgicamente. In particolare i medici hanno illustrato all'assessore Gallera l'importanza di poter garantire in futuro questo tipo di terapia all'interno dei percorsi di follow up oncologico, senza costi per le pazienti.

Si tratta di nuove iniziative che confermano la vocazione dell'ospedale di Romano a struttura che offre i servizi previsti dal DM 70, con in più molti servizi ambulatoriali, riabilitativi e di day surgery, che consentono l'integrazione delle equipe e miglior utilizzo delle sale operatorie e dei posti letto.

Romano Hospital, new subacute ward officially opened

Eighteen new beds for subacute care, an entire ward in a completely renovated wing

The ward, embellished with paintings kindly donated by the "Il Romanino" artistic recreation club, was presented with the participation of Giulio Gallera, Lombardy Regional Councillor for Welfare, Claudia Terzi, Lombardy Regional Councillor for Infrastructure, Transport and Sustainable Mobility, Lombardy regional councillors Paolo Franco and Monica Mazzoleni, the mayors of Romano, Barbata, Fontanella, Morengo, Bariano and Cologno, MPs Daniele Belotti and Elena Carnevali, and Mara Azzi, General Manager of the ATS (Health Protection Agency), along with two new areas, the advanced phlebology centre and the women's Well-being centre. Thanks to an innovative technique, the subacute ward offers the opportunity to have surgery to solve varicose vein problems, without long recovery periods. A total of 185 procedures have been performed since its opening eight months ago.

The women's Well-being Centre, instead, offers multidisciplinary support to women in the menopause, with the aid of various specialists: gynaecologists, endocrinologists, psychologists and orthopaedic specialists. Through gynaecological dynamic quadripolar radiofrequency technology, disorders linked to hormone imbalance, such as vaginal atrophy, mild incontinence and frequent urinary infections, can be treated.

These problems also affect young women who, after recovering from hormone-dependent tumours, experience an early menopause induced by drugs or surgery. Specifically, the physicians explained to councillor Gallera the importance of providing this kind of therapy free of charge for patients in the future as part of oncology follow-up.

With these new initiatives, the Romano Hospital will continue to offer the services provided for by Ministerial Decree 70 (basic hospital), as well as many outpatient, rehabilitation and day surgery services, which ensure team integration (i.e. equal treatment for citizens who refer to the two local health authority's hospitals) and better use of operating theatres and beds.
